News You Can Use (me = Paul Raff, the TA):

1. I am here to help you succeed in this course. Always feel free to ask any question, anytime.
2. Recitations: We will go over topics of lecture of the previous week, and homework problems will be worked out in full detail.

3. Homeworks: There is no submitted written homework. However, it is strongly encouraged to work out all of the problems listed on the website as the semester goes on. I will post selected solutions on the website. Please do not hesitate to ask for help on any of these problems!
4. Quizzes: I will give a quiz at the end of each recitation (except the first), each being worth 10 points. 15 minutes of class time will be given for each quiz, and you may work up to 10 minutes more after class ends. You should, however, be able to finish within the 15 minutes given. The quiz will cover topics done in the previous week, and it will definitely help to pay attention to what is happening in recitation!
5. My website: On my website, I will post certain odd-numbered solutions to the homeworks in full detail. The solutions should be up by the Sunday after the homework is due. I am a graduate student, and have plenty of work on my own. Sometimes I fail to post solutions. If it is not up, then harass me!
6. Make-up policy: Make-up quizzes will only be given if written documentation of a major outside circumstance is provided by a college dean or a doctor. There will be no make-up homeworks.
7. Recitations are in the morning. I understand that early mornings aren't usually cherished by undergraduates. You are welcome to come to other sections of the class. However, I encourage you to attend the recitation that you are registered for. If (unlikely) there are no more seats available in the class, then I cannot allow other students to come in. It is a fire hazard.
8. Bring food! Again, this class is in the morning. You are more than welcome to bring food and drink in the class, as long as it won't be a disturbance to the other students. I'll have my coffee!
